HOW IT WAS DONE.

Church Torrington was, perhaps, the greatest coward among women in

Miss Violet Purple was very plump and rather small, with soft blue-gray eyes, eyebrows like twin arches of jet, shining chestnut hair, and a skin like white velvet, just flushed with the softest pink on either dimpled you meant—"

Violet Purple was born to be married-you couldn't think of her as an old maid any more than you could think of strawberries without cream, or a satin slipper without a dainty foot to fit it; and, whenever she thought of the probability of that catastrophe, a face like the mus-tached physiognomy of Mr. Church Torrington outlined itself through the misty vapors of her day dream.
But Mr. Church was so dreadfully bashful that he wouldn't propose; and poor little Violet was nearly at perplexity. And still, in spite of all this, Mr. Torrington persisted in keeping his love to himself. In vain Aunt Sarepta took her work up stairs, and put on her prettiest dresses, and tered. curled her hair, with a special eye to ('burch Torrington's taste.

And little Violet took to crying at might on her lace-edged pillows, and Aunt Sarepta, a tall, maiden lady, who had recently come up from the country to take charge of her brother's household, scarcely knew what

"I'll go and see him myself," was the result of a long day of medita-tion on Miss Sarepta's part; "and I won't let Violet know about it."

Mr Church Torrington sat in his leather covered easy-chair, looking out a difficult case in "Estoppels, when his clerk announced Miss Saepta Purple He colored scarlet as he dragged forth a chair, and stammered out ome incoherent sentence or other. "Thank you," said Miss Purple, depositing herself on the chair "I've come on business."

"Indeed" · Because," said Miss Sarepta, edgng her chair a little nearer that of the young lawyer, "I think it is time this business was settled " "What business."

"What business" echoed Miss Purple; "as if you do not know well enough what I am talking aboutwhy, getting married, to be sure!" Mr Torrington grew a shade or two paler. Was it possible that this ancient maiden still contemplated the probability of matrimony?

"You see," went on Miss Sarepta,
"I am not blind, if I am getting into years, and I can see as well as anybody what you mean by coming so often to our house But still, I think you ought to have spoken out like a man. I'm willing: and I don't suplike you!" Church stared This was not exactly etiquette; but the whole matter was really so unprecedented that he hardly knew what to think.

"And when will you come round to brother Jacob's, and tell the folks all about it'-for I suppose you'd like to tell them yourself. This evening?"

"Y-yes, if you say so!" "It's as good a time as any, I suppose Of course, you won't mention that I said anything? Td rather it should seem unstudied."

"Naturally enough" thought Tortington

But he promised, with a faint smile, and parted from Miss Purple, almost shrinking from the vigorous grasp of the hand which she unhesitatingly bestowed upon him.

No sooner was Church Torrington alone than the full horror of his position rushed upon him What had he done? To what had he committed himself?

"It serves me right," he muttered, granding his teeth, "when I could have won the love of the sweetest bittle fairy that the sun ever shone on. It was simply idiotic of me to allow a middle aged termagant to take possession of me, as though I were a cooking stove or a secondhand clock She will marry me, and into Church's cheek. "Miss Purple, pardon me," he said; "but I've been a stupid blockhead. Don't be angry, as you say were going to be relatives."

And he took the spinster in his arms and bestowed upon her a kiss which made its predecessor appear but the shadow and ghost of kisses -a kiss which sounded as if Mr. Church Torrington meant it.

"Do behave yourself" cried Miss "Yes, I'm going to," said Church, and he walked straight into the

A meeting of veteran soldiers was held in the office of Justice McGorray last evening when it was voted to repeat the entertainment, recently given at the tabernacle, for the benefit of the Macon County Veteran Association. Another meeting of the old soldiers will be held at the court house on Friday evening next when all necessary arrangements for the repetition of the camp life entertainment will be completed. The time of giving the entertainment has not yet been fixed. It was suggested at the meeting last evening that the old soldiers of the county form a "Veterans Aid Society" for the

Going to Litchfield.

Mr. Charles W. Challis has boxed his stock of boots and shoes and tomorrow the outfit will go as freight to Litchfield, Ill., where Mr. C. will engage in business. Mr. Challis has been in business in Postoffice Block here for a number of years, and by fair, square dealing had built up a large city and country trade. It is with reluctance that he leaves Decatur, and does so only because he believes there is a fine opening at Litchfield for a first-class boot and shoe store. We wish him abundant success in his new location.

The room vacated by Mr. Challis will be occupied by Mr. John Irwin, late bookkeeper at J. R. Race & Co.s, who will carry a fine stock of gentlemen's furnishing goods, hats, caps, etc.

The Organ Fund Boneitt. "Faint heart never won fair Lady comedy in one act. "The Sleeping Princes" an operetta in five acts, and the farce of "The Long of a Lover," is the filling up of an evening's entertainment by the ladies of St. John's Tpiscopal church, for the benefit of the organ fund of the church, at the opera house, Thursday evening, Feb. 16, 1882. The object i worthy the patronage of all. The enter tainment given by known talent, is assuronce of an evening enjoyably passed by old and young. The comedy is sharp and the humor of the piece consists, not in the embarrassment of a faint hearted suitor, but the triumphs of an adventurous and audacious lover, whose motto, might be veni ridi, vici. The operetta is pleasing. In music, and act, in which repesentation, the juvenile element bays argely the work in character; the spirit of children in character play, is natural if not always attractive, and none the less enjoyed by all. The farce of "The Loan of a Lover" is one of those vandevilles which on account of its intrinsic merit. must necessarily retain possession of the stage for a long time, the great beauty of the piece is in perfect truth, the simplici-ty of the hero and heroine * We cannot fail to realize that they are fellow beings they are unmistakable crea-tions of Nature.

four years, none possess greater interest to the general public than those made at the well known mill of D. S. Shellabarger & Co. This establishment has for many years stood in the front rank, but the spirit of improvement, the march of scientific advancement, would not permit its proprietors to go on in the beaten track which had been trod by the millers of past centuries; the inventive genius of the age had achieved new discoveries in the which began operations in 1880, with a capacity of 40 barrels of flour per day. good and wholesome bread. The flour made by this process is not only the best in quality that can be produced, but it yields more bread in proportion to its weight than any other flour, and requires less labor to prepare it for the oven—a desideratum that is sure to be appreciated by all who have used it. The famous brands made by the mill, and known as "White Loaf" and "Our Daily Bread," have never been surpassed by flour made elsewhere, and are much sought after by

The importance of their an echanism ment to a town like Decatur, can hardly be overestimated. The farmers who are attracted here by the superiority of the article they desire to obtain, as well as by the fact that they get more for their wheat, and who go by other places nearer to them in order to secure the advantage they desire, do not stop when they have their flour, but they patronize various other business houses of the city, and thus contribute to the general business pros-

The following statement of William J. Coughlin, of Somervite, Mass., is so remarkable that we beg to ask or it the attention of our readers: He says: "In the fall of 1870 I was taken with a violent bleeding of the lungs followed by a severe cough. I soon began to lose my appetite and flesh. I was so weak at one time that I could not leave my bed. In the summer of 1871 I was admitted to the City Hospital. While there the doctors said 1 ad a hole in my left lung as big as a half dollar, I expended over a hundred dollars in doctors and medicines. I was so far gone that at one time a report went around that 1 was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR. W.M. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE following statement of Willian dead. No preparation ever introduced to the American public, for the relief and cane of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Debilitated Constitution, Weakness of the Lungs, or Consumption in the incipient or advanced stages of the disease, has ever met with the indoorsements of physicians or patients as the celebrated "Tolin Rock and Rye." The repeated and continued sales of the article everywhere are the best evidence of its real merits. Letters and testimonials from every quarter of the country, attesting the stimulating, tonic and healing effects, are in possession of the proprietors, and can be adduced to convince the most skeptical reader of its intrinsic virtues. Further commendation is unnecessary and superfluous, as a trial of this article, having a pleasant taste and agreeable flavor, will satisfy all those who are afflicted or pining away with pulmonary weakness of the relief to be secured by the use of Tolu, Rock and Rye.
